Relations and Naval Committee, advocating ratification.

As the Virginia spoke, leaders were preparing for a vote on the first issues by the party's opponents and demand for the documents relating to the London conference which President Hoover has denied the foreign relations committee. The demand is made in a resolution of Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee.

Today's opening quorum roll showed just 50 senators answering. Only one more than the 49 necessary to carry on business.

A division of opinion prevailed on the McKellar resolution. Some leaders proposed to have it voted upon as quickly as possible, no difference whether adopted or not, inasmuch as the President already has denied the foreign relations committee. The demand is made in a resolution of Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee.

Senator Swanston's 1200-word analysis of the treaty was read and for ratification cheered the advocates. He was the wartime chairman of the Senate naval committee and always has been recognized as a staunch preparatory advocate.

RELY ON SWANSTON

There were indications that the treaty proponents were willing to rest their case on Swanston's speech and the message presented yesterday by President Hoover.

The Virginia said the treaty gives America a well-balanced fleet for the first time, establishes naval supremacy for this country in the western hemisphere, saves the taxpayers at least one billion dollars by checking naval competition and insures peace.

Whether controlled by selfish, material interests or the broader and nobler purpose of promoting world peace and settlement, the advocates, the best interests of the United States demand ratification.

From a military and selfish standpoint, the United States can not afford to reject this treaty. From a higher and nobler purpose the treaty should have our approval.

For the United States to reject this treaty would be for her to abandon her moral leadership in the world and to declare at the same time that she is an imperialistic nation seeking conquest and expansion.

"It would create in the rest of the world an apprehension that we had sinister purposes to serve when we rejected the treaty, and would create a world of suspicion against all the nations of the world, and would result finally in political combinations against us to our detriment and menace. This situation would hamper our foreign commerce and retard our material development."

Swanston took up in detail the dominant issue over the limitation of construction of cruisers and the complaint of American naval officials against the restriction on 3-inch gun ships for the United States Navy.

He noted that when the London conference opened Great Britain had an excess of 200 ships in the United States on all kinds of cruises, but 31 while Japan was in excess of the 3-2 ratio by 43.

"If this treaty is ratified," he continued, "the United States can build five additional 3-inch gun cruisers; Great Britain will have to scrap 3 of the Hawkins class and Japan will only complete three more under construction. The ratio of 3-inch cruisers will then be: United States, 10; Great Britain, 8.1; and Japan, 8. There certainly can be complaint as to this."

Old Ironsides Makes First Trip in 33 Years

By HARRY A. KENNEDY

Quietly and without fanfare of trumpets, the historic U. S. frigate "Old Ironsides" today left for the first time in 33 years.

The cruise was a brief one, however, extending only from the Charlestown Navy Yard to the South Boston Armory, where the lower masts of the rebuilt frigate were to be stripped.

Tonight "Old Ironsides" will return her entire crew back to the navy yard for installation of upper spars and rigging in preparation for her forthcoming tour of the country ports.

The departure from Pier 2 at the Navy Yard where the Constitution had been under the repair since the frigate was launched in 1820, U. S. N. was entirely lacking in ceremony.

With Lieutenant Lord on the main deck directing the work, lines were cast off promptly at 8:45, and the ancient craft swung out from the pier two tugs pulled alongside.

To the accompaniment of whistle signals from those in charge and the squeal of engines, the frigate left the pier on each quarter, and went eastward in the direction of the harbor.

With plenty of leeway the tugs went about and her stern once more was proudly cutting the waves. Old Ironsides was headed for the Navy Yard in South Boston.

Many of the seamen, waterfront workers and others who watched the spectacle, wished the frigate would sail with all her spars and rigging, breaking out a smoky cloud of canvas as she heeled to the breeze.

There were no towering spars and white sails, however, and although the Stars and Stripes were hoisted from the stern the vessel attracted no attention from the busy harbor craft.

Once out in the stream one of the tugs cast anchor, and with a detail of "golfs" aboard, hurried ahead to prepare for the frigate's arrival at the South Boston Armory.

The other tug walked the historic craft along, the Constitution receiving an occasional whistle salute from a passing steamer, but in most cases being ignored.

The cruise was indeed short, the Constitution reaching the drydock just half an hour from the time she left the Navy Yard.

DRY-DOCK FLOODED

The dock was flooded, and the frigate was set in amply along side the big crane which was to strip the heavy lower spars into place.

According to Lieutenant Lord, the crane is not big enough to handle the topmasts, which will be fitted at the navy yard, where Old Ironsides will also be rigged.

As the craft swept into the dock there were no cheers from admiring spectators, such as have greeted her at the end of a voyage in the past.

The only operators were newspapermen, seamen and dock workers, with an occasional aviator skimming the blue overhead.

The work of stripping the three lower masts is expected to take but a few hours' time.

While an anguished mother and sister watched helpless from shore, seven boys and a man were tossed into the rough waters of Dorchester Bay today when their small outboard motor boat sank beneath them.

Responding to the cries of the frightened boys, Higgins, who men and motorists went to their aid and all were rescued within a few minutes.

The accident occurred 25 feet from Coller's Beach, Pierport, where Mrs. Mary Powers and her daughter, Gertrude, of 100 Bedford st., were watching.

The other boys, eight, son and brother of the two women, were making his first trip in a boat, and the two anxious women saw him floundering in the water when the overloaded craft foundered.

The heavy weight in the small boat proved too much for the buoyancy and the craft suddenly swung overboard, the frightened boys immediately brought rescuers hastening to the spot.

Fourteen-year-old Hubert Moran, of 21 Lansdowne st., Dorchester, a freckle-faced, red-headed youth, was first to reach the group struggling in the water.

After treatment on the beach, Devveny and the seven boys went home in taxis.

Two men motorists, who declined to give their names, reported that they saw the accident while riding along Old Colony boulevard and that they instantly stopped their car, peeling off their coats and waded to the rescue, bringing two of the boys safely ashore.

Mrs. Heckscher RESERVE FOR NEWTAN BANK IS NAMED

U. S. Commissioner Is Placed in Charge of Affairs of First National

Edward C. Jenney, U. S. Commissioner at Boston, was today appointed by Judge Cox in Superior court as receiver of the First National Bank of Newton.

The appointment was made in equity motion division for the purpose of collecting a large amount of interest alleged to be due stockholders of the bank.

The plaintiff is the Charles W. Savings Bank, a substantial stockholder. The Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, another stockholder, is named as a nominal respondent.

TRANSACTION BEFORE 1860

It is alleged that prior to 1860 an official of the sub-treasury at Washington procured from the Newton National Bank a temporary deposit of a large amount of money for the purpose of collecting a disbursement amounting to many thousands of dollars.

These funds it is declared, remained in the U. S. Treasury more than 12 years, and the Newton bank was compelled to make payment and its stockholders required to make large payments to liquidating officers of the bank.

The court of claims at Washington, interested in Congress passed a law to solve for the payment of the money. The judgment was given in favor of the claimants, but omitted the payment of interest.

TO COLLECT INTEREST

The judgment which was paid to the Newton bank, full of interest, is now being collected by the Newton bank. The Newton bank is authorized to make any arrangements he may deem expedient in collecting interest from the stockholders. The plaintiff says it has been unable to learn if the Newton bank is still in existence as a corporation.

CONAN DOYLE'S WIDOW EXPECTS SPIRIT MESSAGE IN FEW DAYS

FUNERAL WILL TAKE PLACE THURSDAY

All Britain Aroused by Anticipated Test of Family's Mediumistic Test

London, July 8 (INS)—Mourning the permanent physical departure of a father, husband and scholar, the family of the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle today completed the simple plans for final tribute in the passing of the author and spiritualist.

At Groombridge, Sussex, funeral services will be held Thursday and Sir Arthur's body will be buried near the picturesque village church.

Though the creator of Sherlock Holmes died yesterday, struck with a heart attack in his 72nd year, his family and friends considered his death but a transition that will have its culmination in early communications from Sir Arthur from the world of spirits.

WIDOW AWAITS MESSAGE
Lady Doyle confidently expects a spirit communication from Sir Arthur within a week, it was announced by the family. The widow herself is strongly mediumistic and made a pact with her husband that when he "passed over" he would send her a message within a week after his death through her spirit control, "Phospha."

The details of this remarkable pact was revealed by Mrs. St. Clair Shohat, chairman of the London "Spiritualist Community," of which Sir Arthur was president, at a time of his death.

"Lady Doyle told me a short time ago," she said, "that when both she and Sir Arthur felt death approaching, they had agreed to attempt to communicate as soon as Sir Arthur became 'disembodied' to the other sphere."

ALL BRITAIN STIRRED
Conjecture and interest grew throughout Britain at a moment which gripped the hearts of a well-loved writer, gentleman, scholar, and traveler and at the next moment viewed with awe and interest the practical test to which his firm belief in communication with the living after death could now be put.

"I know perfectly well that I am going to have conversations with him," his son, Adrian said. "Father fully believed that when he passed over he would continue to keep in touch with us, there is no question but that he will speak to us just as he did before he died."

"We will miss his footsteps and his physical presence, but otherwise he might only have gone to Australia."

"We are prepared for rickety on the part of Charles, and he will guard against it."

The son explained that Lady Doyle, in her years of intimacy with the departed novelist and spiritualist, had learned some things of the infection of his words, and his habits of speech, which would guard them against it.

LAST WORDS TO WIFE
The other son, Dennis, and the daughter, Joan, are equally confident of future communications with their father.

All were at his bedside when he smiled quietly into his wife's eyes just before death, and said: "You are wonderful."

PROBE LOANS IN MERRIMACK BANK CRASH

Much of Land Mortgaged, the State Officials Report, Not Worth Paying Taxes On

Manchester, N. H., July 8—Just how responsible the official or officials of the Merrimack River Savings Bank came to make loans of $2,336,200 on Colorado lands, many of which are not worth paying taxes on, is a question the 20,000 depositors in the institution would like to have answered.

The affairs of the bank are now being liquidated on order of William A. Dwyer, chief justice of the Superior Court. Final loss to the depositors, it is estimated, may reach 20 per cent. The bank had $12,000 in deposits.

Investigation of the Colorado loans by Winthrop Wadleigh, assistant attorney-general of New Hampshire, and John W. Maynard, state bank examiner, revealed an amazing state of affairs, according to their report.

The bank holds mortgages on land located in the San Luis Valley, Colorado. The valley is about the size of the state of Connecticut. It is about 100 miles long and 50 miles wide, and entirely surrounded by mountains. It is located about 200 miles southwest of Denver. It was in this valley, in the town of Manitou, where Jack Dempsey was born.

There were about 250 separate tracts of land in the valley when Wadleigh inspected. "Most of the land was covered with sagebrush. A good deal of it has an assessed valuation of $1 or $2 an acre. All this land has to be irrigated before any crops can be raised on it."

There is a New Hampshire law which says that money should be loaned on a first mortgage, or when the land is improved, occupied and productive.

Much of the land in this valley is not occupied, productive or improved. Asked about this, Wadleigh admitted that in some cases the only improvement he found consisted of a decrepit fence. A good deal of the land was covered, albeit which must be drained off before the land can produce any crops.

NOT WORTH TAXES.
The investigators only found a few tracts of land with any buildings with people living in them, and most of these were tenants who had rented them at a small price.

"A good many tracts of this land," said Wadleigh, "are not worth paying taxes on. Taxes on the land have been paid since 1922, and the land has not the amount of back taxes."

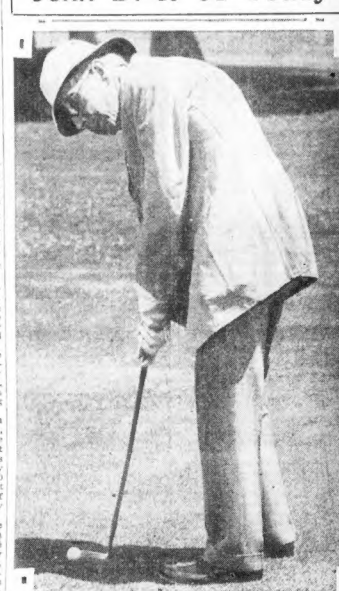

The land out there is divided off into townships six miles square. Most of these towns are on a fourth section, though some were on half a section.

Most of these loans were made through the Charles E. Gibson Land Company, which has offices in Boston and Colorado.

The bank commissioner hopes to be able to pay 75 per cent dividend to depositors.

The investigations by Wadleigh show that the present value of mortgaged lands upon which the bank loaned $2,336,200 will not exceed $350,000, making a loss in this instance alone of $1,986,200.

NEW ENGLAND
RAIL RATES INCREASED

Washington, July 8 (AP)—Railroads operating in Western trunk line territory, which extends west from Lake Michigan to the Rocky Mountains and northward from Kansas and Missouri to the Canadian border, were authorized today to establish increased rates on classified freight.

The increased annual earnings expected to result from the Interstate Commerce Commission ruling are estimated at $12,000,000. Railroads in Eastern territory were also accorded permission to institute a new system of class rates applying over the northeast quarters of the United States, which in general result in increased earnings.

The western trunk line rate revision will be effective Nov. 1 while the eastern revision will be made effective within four months.

In eastern territory generally, the commission prescribed distance basis for classified freight rates, which in some cases involved reductions from existing rate levels.

The eastern scale for first class shipments began by fixing a charge of 50 cents per hundred pounds for distances of five miles; 10 cents for distances of 75; rising to 50 cents for 400 miles, and reaching $1.45 for distances of 500 miles.

The 22 other classifications of freight are arranged proportionately to the schedule given for first class shipment.

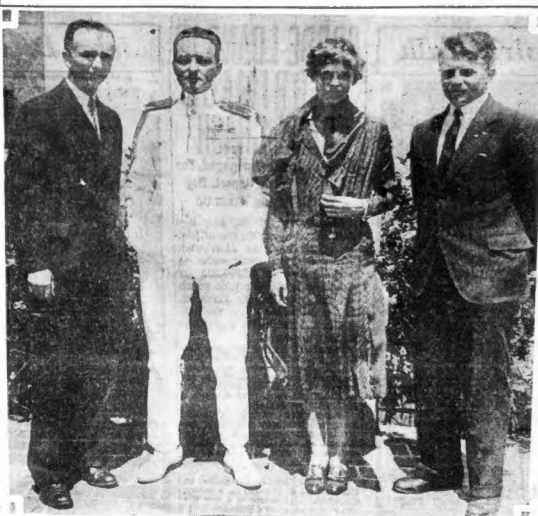

For northern Michigan, western and northern New England and certain branch line territory in West Virginia and Kentucky, some higher classified rates than those applying to the general eastern territory were authorized.

The commission filed a number of differentials applying to specific territory and laid down schedules of key rates governing movements between eastern and western territory.

In the western adjustment certain agricultural commodities were exempted from increase, while classifications ordinarily applying to certain commodities rated as farm supplies were changed to prevent increased transport charges from coming upon them.

The domestic freight problem is solved by fixing a differential amount and the rates are advertised daily in the Freight Bulletin.

LINDY ASKS AIR
UNIFORMITY

New York, July 8 (AP)—Responding to a request from the League of Nations for his views on the international aspects of commercial aviation, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has cabled to the transit section of the league an outline of what he believes can be done for flying.

His cablegram, sent yesterday, was calculated to reach Geneva on the eve of the opening of an international conference on commercial aviation.

"There is great need," Lindbergh cabled, "for international co-operation in the standardization of airways. A uniform system of markings and signals should be decided upon and a comprehensive meteorological and radio reporting system established."

"Adoption of uniform regulations is of utmost importance. In some countries today aircraft are placed in the class with ocean steamers and must go through similar procedure in clearing. Clearance charges are high and delays are often comparatively long in relation to the time spent in actual travel."

Stability of Hearst
Papers Backs Stock

By JULIUS G. BERENSON
New York, July 8—Unusual investment opportunity is provided by the new Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., which is now permitted to participate in the profits of the Hearst newspaper organization.

The preferred stock now being offered at $25 a share combines not only all the essentials of investment, but, in addition, provides a genuine profit-sharing clause which adds to the attractiveness of the issue.

EARNINGS INCREASE
A yield of 7 per cent is furnished on the investment, but the stock also carries the right to participate in additional profits up to a possible 10 per cent total dividend distribution.

Safety, the first essential of investment, is provided by the purchase of the Hearst preferred stock, the earnings record of the 11 newspapers which make up the corporation. Average net earnings over the period 1925-1929 inclusive, were equivalent to $14 times annual dividend requirements on the preferred stock; last year the net income reached 2.67 times dividends.

Progress in earnings available for the preferred is another encouraging element of the new stock, net earnings have grown consistently as shown in the following table:

1928	$10,000,000
1927	10,162,384
1926	11,647,778
1925	$12,545,658

Management ability, a prime consideration for investors, is exemplified in the earnings record. Public appreciation of the Hearst papers is reflected in the circulation of 2,563,428 daily and 1,744,071 Sunday for the newspapers behind the $50,000,000 preferred stock issue, and the $100,242 circulation of "American Weekly," likewise included in the chain.

Stability is provided by the nationwide distribution of the newspapers, constituting the greatest enterprise of its character in the United States. Assets of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., aggregate more than $124,000,000.

WINTER ST. Boston 118 THE FINEST

Gracious Hostess Graceful as Well

By ANN ARDEN

(ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m.)

GONE ARE the days when a plain, ordinary wrapper was all that a dressing gown meant. Nowadays the negligee plays many parts. It is worn for breakfast at country week-ends; it is worn for our leisure hours, bliss them, and is sometimes used in an emergency as a dress when the night is very warm.

THERE ARE a great many types of negligees and pajamas, but we are going to talk here only of the "hostess gown"—that gives an extremely grand feeling of being well set-up and ready for playing the grande dame, which we all love doing.

DESIGNERS are putting forth effort to give the hostess every opportunity to express her personality. Graceful hostess gowns and smart hostess pajamas have been evolved to allow her to receive her guests with gracious charm.

THE LOVELY creation pictured is simple, dignified, graceful, and altogether lovely, a hostess gown of powder blue chiffon, with wide circular sections in skirt, tie belt, and a shoulder cape, softly draped from V neck, forming bolero line in front, and pointing deeply hollow waistline in back.

A DELIGHTFUL pajama negligee consists of very full pink satin trousers pleated on a plain yoke, and a matching tucked-in blouse, which is sleeveless. Little chiffon velvet jacket is of maroon lined with pink chiffon. For those among you who are very practical we will hint at the fact that the blouse may be worn with a suit (maroon, navy, black or brown), and the jacket may be worn in the evening!

OTHER NEGLEEES are just as charming, such as a sleeveless "dress" made of off-white satin and coat of white lace lined with chiffon. The coat could be of any brilliant color and might be worn with other things.

A PRINCESS slip is conscious of its royal lineage these days. There was a time when "princess slip" was usually used to designate a straight-line slip or a more fitted garment, but now a princess slip means an undergarment of carefully fitted lines. It is too often worn beneath a frock princess lines to change its slim, aristocratic ways.

BROCKTON CLUB TO CONDUCT 22 MEETINGS

By NANCY BREWSTER

Twenty-three meetings, regular and departmental, have been planned and programmed by members of the program committee of the Brockton Women's Club, the opening session scheduled for October 20 in Pythian Temple, with the new president, Mrs. George E. Taber, presiding. The program includes lectures, dramatics, musicals, and legislative work. The club has been successful in securing the services of the most prominent speakers and lecturers in the city. The club has also been successful in securing the services of the most prominent speakers and lecturers in the city.

Brockton has done well to have completed their club calendar so early in the season, continuing an enviable record which has made the club one of the most powerful of the influential constituents in the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs.

RECEPTION TO OFFICERS
Of the several outstanding events which the club has planned for the season, the most keenly anticipated is the combined first and second district legislative session, which will be held in the club on October 10, 1930, at 7 o'clock.

Other club announcements, which follow the second regular meeting when Mrs. William E. Cheney, prominent Massachusetts clubwoman, and world traveler, lecture on "Russia, the Land of Mystery," October 26, include a temporary pageant, "Through the Centuries in New England," offered as the November 17 attraction. Frank Palmer, president of North-eastern University, on "Cost of Ignorance," November 25; Arthur H. Merritt, scenic photographer and lecturer on "The Beautiful Mountains of Europe," December 1; Mrs. Edward P. Bailey, chairman of the department of the American Home will have charge of the December 9 session, presenting as the afternoon speaker, the Rev. John Wood Merriam of the First Parish Church in Arlington, on "The Ethics of the Home."

CHRISTMAS PAGEANT
On December 15 comes the Christmas pageant of which Mrs. Charles R. Storey, an chairman of dramatics, will have charge. Vice-presidents' Day, an institutional event with most clubs, will be held for the Brockton club, January 4, with Mrs. Frank L. Kelley and Mrs. Clyde R. Marston, first and second vice-presidents in charge. On that occasion a dramatic reading of "The Two Virtues" will be given.

The annual dramatic will be presented both afternoon and evening of January 21 in the high school hall, with the blind of Brockton as the special guests at one performance. February 16 is the date of the annual musical and continuing through April. Brockton club women will be treated in one way or another to entertainment, educational, social, and civic. April 27 will close the club season with the annual meeting, election of officers and reception.

Mrs. George E. Gomley, second district director, who knows anything and everything about the 20 clubs in her district, tells me that Miss Harriet M. Wallcomb of Quincy is the newly elected president of the Quincy Young Women's Community Club. Close to 200 entertaining and community-conscious young women belong to this group, organized in 1910 and admitted to membership in the State Federation in 1926.

The club is the second Monday of the month and has for its purpose art, education, literature, music, drama and legislation, with special efforts placed on local charities, the support of a district Sunday on the Cleveland, to visit the scene of her childhood in

Miss Alfrida M. Mosher, of the International Institute staff of the Boston Young Women's Christian Association, sails from Boston next Sunday on the Cleveland, to visit the scene of her childhood in Ronneberg, in the Thuringian Forest, Germany. Early in October when she returns to this country, she will resume her duties with the "Y" in that particular branch of the work which aims to establish intelligent friendship among the races.

Helen Dauncey, Dorothy Dudley and Constance Greene of the Health Education staff of the Boston "Y" have sailed for a Mediterranean and Black Sea cruise, returning in the ship September 10 for the resumption of "Y" activities.

About 100 members of the Boston Rooming House Association, that group of women who are doing so much to reclaim the South End, left today for Salem Willows to enjoy the annual picnic and get-together by way of a harbor sail, a shore dinner and outing features.

The women met at the Girls' high school in West Newton St., answered the roll call, and then got for a day the trials and tribulations of cleaning up the rooming house situation in the South End.

Mrs. Charles Snyder heads the association. Mrs. Andrew Gibbs, former president, is one of its most loyal workers.

and Constance Greene of the Health Education staff of the Boston "Y" have sailed for a Mediterranean and Black Sea cruise, returning in the ship September 10 for the resumption of "Y" activities.

About 100 members of the Boston Rooming House Association, that group of women who are doing so much to reclaim the South End, left today for Salem Willows to enjoy the annual picnic and get-together by way of a harbor sail, a shore dinner and outing features.

The women met at the Girls' high school in West Newton St., answered the roll call, and then got for a day the trials and tribulations of cleaning up the rooming house situation in the South End.

Mrs. Charles Snyder heads the association. Mrs. Andrew Gibbs, former president, is one of its most loyal workers.

SIGHT SEEING AIR BUSES FOR HUB

By GEORGE HAMILTON

The era of the short "joy hops" from large air centers, such as Boston Municipal Airport, rapidly drawing to a close, and in order to continue to obtain the business of the short riding public, Curtiss-Wright Flying Service and Consolidated Ticket Office have combined their efforts to draw up a series of cruises.

These cruises really give the short rider a run for his money, taking him, as they do, to some point of interest, and from the airport and giving him a ride which for beauty and pleasure is hard to rival.

The so-called "grand old days" of commercial aviation, anyone with a five dollar bill or more would be taken up and flown around the city for a short period, usually 10 minutes, and then brought back.

Harry Copland, manager of Curtiss-Wright, his traffic manager, Bob Hamilton, and Eddie O'Toole, manager of Consolidated Ticket Office, decided that some means of getting the business could be devised.

Which one of the trio is responsible for the idea is not known, but all three had a part in the arrangement. O'Toole was interested because he is building up his service to include a regular branch of air travel, and realized that the people would ride in larger numbers if they were given something for their money.

Four tours have been announced by the two groups, with more being organized. They are divided into, as widely different classes as one could ask, and range from $5 to $15 per person.

UNIVERSITY TRIP

The Boston Aerial Tour, consisting of a ride over the city and surrounding territory, which is assembled very closely the old short joy hop. Next comes the "University Tour," taking in all the colleges and universities in Greater Boston. The Shore Cruise, either north or south, and the Minute Man Tour, to Lexington and Concord, and other historic cities and towns along the way.

"These tours will enable the thousands of visitors to Boston to get a better idea of our state," said O'Toole. "Curtiss-Wright will fly either the three-place Robbins, six-place Thrush or trimotor Ford, depending upon the size of the party."

Having sold his Cessna cabin monoplane a week after he bought it, Val Chick, prominent independent commercial flyer, purchased a Challenger engine Robin from Curtiss-Wright, and is equipping it with pontoons for water flying.

Chick flew the ship at the North Adams air meet over the past week and immediately upon its return to Boston commissioned Curtiss-Wright mechanics to fit the pontoons. The beaches and large lakes around New England will be harnessed by him, and when the winter comes again, he will take the ship south.

A hurry business call to Boston brought Roger Wolfe Kahn, orchestra leader, up from New York in his Vought Corsair, accompanied by his valet.

Kahn climbed out of the ship, changed his grimy flying clothes for a business suit, jumped in a taxicab for Boston, and several hours later returned to the airport. Another change back into flying togs, and away to Gotham.

Lopez to Be Rotary Luncheon Guest

THE JOHN HOWLAND HOUSE, PLYMOUTH

AS ONE LEAVES the center of Plymouth, going toward the Cape, on the right-hand side of the street is an old Plymouth dwelling surrounded by a picket fence. The tablet upon the grounds tells the visitor that this is the "oldest house left standing today that has heard the voices of the Pilgrims."

It is a two-story wooden edifice with the familiar pitched roof. Its record can be traced to 1687. John Howland, son of Pilgrim John Howland, bought the property and occupied the homestead until 1860. His father was no doubt a frequent visitor.

WITHSTANDS TIME

James Howland sold the home, with its estate, to Elizabeth Watson, and down the years it has passed from one ownership to another, withstanding the ravages of time and wear and tear of centuries.

Twice it was used as a two-family residence, the first time by Stephen Churchill and Ephraim Little. This was in the early 18th century, and probably the first two-family residence in Plymouth.

Finally, in the late 19th century, a society was organized called the John Howland House. The house was restored in 1913 and is open to visitors for a very small fee.

LAST OF PILGRIMS

Of Pilgrim Howland is said: "He was a godly man and an ancient professor in the ways of Christ. He was one of the first comers into this land and was the last man that was left of the first comers into this land and was the last man that was left of the first comers into this land."

When John Howland and the other passengers of the Mayflower first settled in Plymouth, real estate was a community affair. Not long, though, before the land was parceled among the settlers to become their exclusive property. The mere-steads along the river bank are a legacy for the last today, with the steep, green-covered slopes and old wooden dwellings hanging thereon as it slanted by the wind. Thousands of tourists visit Plymouth year after year for its historical setting and its quiet beauty.

Plymouth can be reached by land or sea. A trip by steamer down the harbor is an interesting adventure, while the automobile routes through the small coast towns are equally attractive. Tomorrow—Home of Parsons, Hearn, Bedford.

MR. JONES ENTERTAINS FRIENDS THIS WEEK

"ALL OFF TO COMPLETE IN THE NATIONAL OPEN EH? WELL GOOD LUCK BOYS."

"WHO US? WE WOULDN'T FOOL YOU HON. WERE OFF TO SEE BOBBY JONES PLAY GOLF."

Water Gap, Pa., July 8—To call Al Singer "The Second Benny Leonard" is no misnomer. The lines of destiny of Leonard and the youngster, who is training here at Castle Inn Country Club to win from Sammy Mandell the crown once worn by King Benny, run strangely alike. Each is a Jew and proud of it. Each was born in the Ghetto in the heart of New York's East Side. Each had the same associations and lived in the same atmosphere and environment. When each was at a tender age their parents moved "Up Town." At one time they lived within a block of each other in Hye Town. Al living at 110th St. and Lenox Ave., and Benny residing just around the corner on 113th St. They are of the same boisterous type and have similar living styles. Leonard was a crack pianist and his father, a well-known pianist. Each was knocked out early in his career by the great Al Singer. Each climbed steadily up the fabled ladder. Leonard was knocked out by Frankie Flaming, came back and gave his cravable conqueror a decisive whipping. Singer was rocked and staggered by a great Al Singer in a return match fairly massacred the Filipino.

Singer Is Very Fast in Ring
In speed and boxing skill Singer is a record recently. For a year he has been playing about a corresponding stage of Benny's career. Benny was a wonderful fighting head and heart and was a good promoter in developing as rapidly as any youngster in this State. Ring handicapper only comes through experience and Al is yet too young to show the headwork of the great fighter whose throngs Singer seeks to capture.

Young Corbett III Beat Champs But Has No Title

By DAMON RUTON
(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)
New York, July 8—You do not find Young Corbett III in any of the standard fight records books. No. That is, individually. However, you will find him in the records of other weight classes, as Jackie Fields, former champ, and Young Jack Thompson, present title holder.

Young Corbett III has licked 'em both. He has licked Jackie Thompson a couple of times, in fact. He just got through licking him. He has licked Jackie Thompson a couple of times, in fact. He just got through licking him.

That seems to apply, too, to Al Espinoza, who finished in a dead heat with Jones last year and is regretting the incident exceedingly. Jones beat him 28 strokes in the 15th round. They say Espinoza is playing some low well at the moment and here is another young man who has been beaten, but is expected to make the matter permanent. "Shute" blew up in sight of the finish in 1929 and perhaps his failure to come out in 1930 should be taken into account at this time, as he is now making a good thing of it, but it is a painful finish at Winged Foot.

Of all Jones' victims this man seems to have a real chance at Interference. It is almost as if he had been beaten by a ghost. This would seem to leave him little to do, but he is taking slight formality of winning the open championship.

GOOD GOLF
By CHESTER HORTON
I have previously stressed that you concern yourself only with your swing and the ball while you are swinging. This could better be that you concern yourself only with the ball while you are swinging. This could better be that you concern yourself only with the ball while you are swinging.

Now we have Young Corbett III, a welterweight. It is a remarkable compliment to the man who has been beaten by him, that he is still taking him. Especially when you consider that you haven't heard of any Young Jeffries, or Young Dempsey, or Young Tunney of any great fame.

Young Corbett Twice Fought Sammy Baker
Young Corbett III fought Sammie Baker at Madison Square Garden in 1928 and lost. I believe Corbett got the decision. In a return match at Rhetta Field, with few clients present, they put up a great battle and Corbett won.

27 Days and Going Strong

KEEPING UP WITH THE NEWS. Ralph D'Agostino, Brockton's flagpole sitter, rounded out 26 days perched on his flagpole yesterday. Today, his 27th day, he was still aloft and hadn't decided when he would drop back to earth. (Staff photo.)

Cinderellas Extinct, Shoe Dealers Say

Runners that the American girls' foot is growing larger have been confirmed by experts attending the Boston Shoe and Leather Fair now in its second day at the Hotel Raleigh.

There was a time when the ideal girl could slip her foot into a shoe without a whimper. But today it would take quite a struggle to accomplish the same feat (on pun) for the honors now are with the shoe.

THE SHOE. But whereas the girl of yesterday had just a few colors from which to select her shoe, today she has a choice of a vast array of styles, colors and materials.

The latest and best in footwear is being displayed by 150 exhibitors at the shoe show which also attracts a large audience.

MOTHER OF 7 IN BAT LEE FOR FREEDOM

Is Kept in an Insane Hospital Because the State Does Not Know What to Do With Her

Confined in an insane hospital since the night of her seven children because the Commonwealth of Massachusetts does not know of anything else to do with her, a mother who has suffered the loss of one child at the hands of kidnappers appeared in municipal court yesterday and made a touching plea for her release.

She gave Judge Francis J. Gould two reasons why she should be set free, but the judge, confronted with the dilemma which has baffled other judges sitting in the same case, refused her request, and sent her back to the hospital.

Hit on Head With Phone, Says Wife; Gets Divorce

Testimony that Dr. Grover C. Proctor of the Chamber of Commerce building struck his wife on the head with a telephone set was given in Norfolk probate court at Dedham by Mrs. Elia Richardson Proctor of Wellesley.

Her divorce was one of 23 granted by Judge McCool, who also dismissed one petition and annulled a marriage in the heaviest docket in the history of the court.

Mrs. Proctor, who testified she was slapped by her husband in his office on June 2, 1929, when she was on duty, said she was injured.

Mrs. Proctor was awarded the custody of two children, George R. 10, and Robert W., and alimony of $25 a week.

Mrs. Eleanor E. Farrington of Cohasset was granted a divorce from Clifford F. Farrington of New York city on grounds of gross and confirmed habits of intemperance.

Evidence was introduced that Farrington had been sent to two sanitariums for treatment, but they failed to cure him of the liquor habit.

Yesterday she was brought to municipal court. This time Judge Gould was on the bench. Two factors from officials of the hospital seemingly in contradiction were appearing on the papers ready for his perusal.

Unable to see any other solution Judge Gould was forced to send the woman back to the hospital for 10 days more.

But he promised her husband that he would reopen the case this morning if his counsel, Atty. John P. Fenner, will appear and seek to find some other way of dealing with the strange case.

SWING GATES AT MALDEN 'MIRACLE' SHRINE OPEN TO PUBLIC

WITHDRAW GUARD AT CEMETERY

Burial Place of Rev. Patrick J. Power to Be Open Day and Night

Hold Gates Closed, Malden closed to the general public since last November after the pilgrimage of several hundred thousand persons seeking miracle cures at the grave of Rev. Patrick J. Power, was reopened today.

All restrictions were lifted and state police, who have maintained a permanent guard, were withdrawn. Lot owners are, therefore, permitted to have their graves dug, at the cemetery gates. The gates will be open to foot passengers at all hours of the day and night.

Since the public was last admitted to the grave, a general public has been held in the grounds of the shrine in front of St. John's Church, just inside the main gate off Broadway.

Richard Engel, 45 of 42 Toplift st., Dorchester, was slugged with a blackjack and robbed of $1000 in cash last night as he stopped to fix a tire on his car on Maple st., Lexington.

Each of the slain shot, Francis and the victim, Co. 1st, had a collection for work done and was being home with the cash he had saved.

On Maple street one of his tire blew out, and he stopped. As he stood at the roadside, two men pulled up in another car and asked if he needed help. He refused aid. Whereupon the pair got out and attacked him, knocking him unconscious with a blackjack and taking the money.

He was discovered by another motorist and taken to the Choate Memorial Hospital, Woburn, where he was found to be suffering from concussion of the brain.

John Kieran of Wholen pk., Pittsburg, and Andrew Peterson of Perth Amboy, N. J., who were riding with them, were taken to the Cambridge Hospital. On Mt. Auburn st.

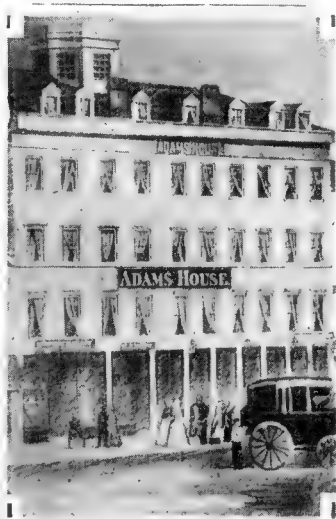

Kieran suffered from concussion of the brain, and multiple contusions and abrasions, while Peterson had a sprained back.

Thomas P. Dunn of 482 Main st., Pittsburg, driver of the car, was shaken up.

The party were on the way to the Massachusetts General hospital when their car was in collision with a truck driven by Patrick J. Lavalle of Center st., Malden. The auto overturned, throwing the occupants to the street.

*An investigation conducted by the Association of Life Insurance Medical Directors and the Actuarial Society of America revealed the fact that the death rate increases practically 1% for every pound of excess weight carried between the ages of 40 and 44 years. In other words, a man 40 pounds overweight at this age has only 60% of expectancy of life of a man of normal weight. We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky instead," you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

CONCERNING RADIO

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

Deserving

There is no way of estimating just how many people of both sexes receive each month to crash the gates into the radio world. The number must be enormous, however. For years broadcasting does not have the fascination or glamour which attaches the movie business but it is sufficiently attractive and what is of more importance to certain types of people commands enough of the imagination to lure a very sizable number of prospective announcers and entertainers in an attempt to gain a foothold within the magic circle.

Naturally, with the continuous expansion of the radio industry there is an increasing demand for announcers and entertainers, many of whom are drawn from our fields of endeavor. And we believe it will be of interest to give the results of the Columbia system, as an example, for those who can qualify as an announcer.

Last week the Columbia System held their monthly audition and more than 100 applicants were before the "mike" and attempted to qualify. These applicants ranged from grocery clerks to political orators and from the imagination of the Ten percent of the applicants were foreigners.

Some of the less literate would-be announcers were completely unprepared when faced with the microphone which they were required to read before the microphone. One man stumbled over "Belief," calling it "believe"; others referred to Bill King as the "old king" and Beethoven as "best-been."

With the exception of a few, they were nervous. Many were so nervous that the script gave them to read before the "mike" shook perceptibly. Some of them saw a radio studio for the first time and although their microphones hung conspicuously from the ceiling, they looked in vain for the instrument.

An Englishman with a good deal of pose but little knowledge of music, stumbled over the well known song "Largo Spinto" as the president of the club king and the club king and the club king.

For Real Democracy

Some Suggestions for Massachusetts Leaders

In all the back-door conferences which may be held in the next few days, the Democratic leaders of Massachusetts would do well to keep constantly in mind the sage counsel of that very distinguished Democrat, the late Samuel J. Tilden.

Mr. Tilden said that the Democratic party can be victorious when it has the courage actually to be democratic. What he meant, of course, was that the Democratic party should be faithful to the ideals of Jefferson: that it must set the destiny of the country above the seductive wiles of internationalism; that it must uproot bureaucracy and maintain the government in the smallest units close to the people; that it must ever be eager to protect the human rights of the people, and notably when they clash with what we came to know as "the vested interests."

Never was the time more advantageous to follow those ideals. We see ourselves steadily drifting away from the traditional moorings. We see the international meddling. We see the steady invasion of the rights and duties of the States, and hardly hear a voice raised in protest. We see the abortive attempts to enforce summary laws. We see the lethargy of officials who are supposedly required by law to prevent the massive consolidations of industrial and mercantile influence which destroy the independent manufacturer and businessman. We see our natural resources exploited and squandered.

It is against those and similar conditions which the Democrats can take their stand if they are to attain the state which Mr. Tilden declared to be essential to success.

The color of a candidate's hair or his geographical availability is not going to determine the outcome of the November election. It will be the issues which he espouses and the intelligence with which he presents them to the voters.

The Democratic party was never in a better condition in this State than when it had a free and open primary, allowing the candidates to be selected by the voters rather than by leaders.

Italy Doubles Her Tariff

Italy promptly answers the American tariff by raising her duties on American autos 110 to 120 per cent. On small cars, for instance, her former duty was 7000 lire. Now it is 16,000. None will blame Italy for retaliating. She must protect her big Fiat factories.

It means, though, fewer American cars sold in Italy, fewer cars made here, and MORE American auto workers out of jobs. Also, workers out of jobs will be unable to buy the new clothes, shoes and other things made in America that they would have bought if employed.

Thus does a beneficent tariff law promote prosperity.

No use crying. We went into it with our eyes open. The flexible provisions of the measure may help a little. Wipe away the tears, therefore, and find such comfort as you can in that.

Too Many Old Laws

Many of Them Need Revoking

A fellow loses $650 in a poker game, then digs up a law written in 1740 and compels the winner to pay double his winnings to the State.

In Keene, N. H., the Mayor turns up his nose at Sunday baseball and has the participants arrested under a blue law which had barnacles on it.

Not to be outdone, the Mayor's foes bring him into court for violating the law by driving his auto on Sunday.

These exhibitions may lack some of the amiable sportsmanship which we like to profess. But they do call to mind that we pay commissions and legislators to codify our laws from time to time. The inevitable result is not to get the archaic prohibitions off the books. We wake up every morning to wonder how many new ones there are for us to break.

A Human Ostrich

He Thrives on Nails, Spectacles

Authorities at Johannesburg, South Africa, are amazed at a 50-year-old native convict in the Natal jail who has earned the title of "The Human Ostrich."

Only five feet in height, he eats everything he can lay his hands on. Already he has digested without ill effects the following articles:

Stones, sharp nails, a live frog and a dead rat, fifty grasshoppers and a pair of spectacles.

The warden watches him closely at meal times to see that he does not eat his tin mug and plate. They say he is quite capable of getting away with them.

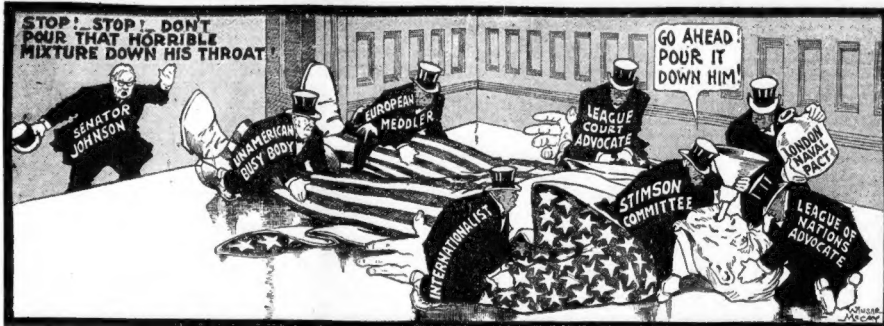

The only thing he has refused to tackle, it is revealed, was an old newspaper containing the text of the London naval treaty. He sampled the opening paragraphs and choked.

Eagles Doing Fine Work

Interested in Social Legislation

A word of greetings to the Massachusetts Fraternal Order of Eagles, who are in annual convention at Plymouth. They are one of our youngest fraternal societies, the first series having been organized here twenty-four years ago. But in their short span they have manifested a noteworthy interest in social legislation affecting the welfare of the people of our State least equipped to assert and acquire their own rights. Their crusade for social insurance for the aged, if it stood alone in their endeavors, would be sufficient to justify their existence.

NEXT ON THE PROGRAMME

"You'll take it and you'll like it," seems to be the order of the busy gentlemen in this picture. Uncle Sam isn't used to this Filipino water cure, but what can he do?

GREAT DOUBLE-BLONDIN ACT

Hold your breath as you look at this, it's the contest of the ages, and it's going on right now. They are OVER the water.

Blondin walked a tight rope over Niagara, also carrying a man on his back. But his job was easy. There was nobody on another parallel rope, bothering the life out of him.

You will notice that our modern Blondins are walking LOOSE ropes, not TIGHT ropes, and HOW loose, you ought to know.

The Brown Jug Blondin and the Old Oaken Bucket Blondin are well equipped in the way of balancing poles. The Old Oaken Bucket has "real dough" at each end, and he fondly hopes that the intoxicating effects of the other gentleman's balancing pole will cause him to lose his balance.

However, that little old jug has walked a long rope, and come out at the other end victorious.

Watch this, it will last at least until 1932, and will be worth watching.

Listen, World! - By Elsie Robinson

Why Aren't Women Good Sports?

"WHY AREN'T women good sports?" writes G. A. C. "Now and then one hears of a woman who will take chances like a man but they're mighty scarce. Look on the average wife. If her husband wants to strike out into something new, that may be a little risky, she does as you say on a dime with him and give him a hand. No, she does everything to discourage him. Women are all-woman."

Elsie Robinson

Men are afraid that if they do things will turn out wrong and they never stop cringing if they do. They seem afraid they will lose something. Women are sure the mercenary sex as well as men sportsmen and I'd like a woman's explanation (though I suppose you'd deny it's true).

No, I won't deny it, G. A. C. It is true. In a very important sense women aren't good sports. AND IT'S A JOKE! GOOD THING FOR THE WORLD THAT THEY AREN'T.

Think back, into our beginnings. Men, from the first, were the adventurers, the experimenters, the takers of chances. They had fire and roving heels. But women hadn't. They were home-bound babyhood.

They had to keep home safe for the sake of their babies. They couldn't make experiments. They were bound to frown on risks— they had so much at stake. They had the safety of their children at stake—the safety of the race. NATURE MADE A MOTHER. HUMAN A BAD SPORT. IN A CERTAIN SENSE, FOR EXACTLY THE SAME REASON THAT SHE MADE A MOTHER TIGER A BAD SPORT.

A woman frowned, and still frown on risks and risks. They couldn't make an adventure of motherhood. They had to keep it a Going Business.

And that, too, is why women are "mercenary"—acquisitive. Women do value possessions more than men because they need possessions more than men. Primitive woman's life was one long, fierce scramble for possessions—for food and furs, to keep her children fed and warm. The coming buck could travel light, but the squaw with the papoose on her back needed goods and chattels.

Yes, I know what you're going to say. . . . many a squaw has no papoose on her back these days. And the worst sports are often the spoiled girls with no responsibility. That's true. But the old, first training still holds and the female—regardless of her modern status—is still bound by the laws of those first squaw grandmothers.

But as for taking chances—back up Big Boy! WOMEN HOLD ALTHOUGH THE RECORD FOR TAKING THE BIGGEST CHANCE THERE IS!

Every human that walks is living proof that some woman gambled her life on a chance. Gambled more than her life—risked those things that are most precious to men: liberty, adventure, a place in the sun. I'm no softy on my sex, stranger.

I know all your feminine cussedness, in its infinite variety. But I'm telling you this—IT'S EASY ENOUGH TO PLAY POKER WITH LIFE, LIKE A MAN. BUT HOW MANY MEN WOULD PLAY SOLITAIRE WITH DEATH LIKE A WOMAN?

The next time a woman is tight-minded, timid, discouraging, a poor sport—remember that, son, there's no human race today if ladies hadn't taken chances. Or, if having taken them, they hadn't hung on to their winnings.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

MENDEL GOT pure tall, hybrid tall and pure short plants; of each kind some were pure yellow, some a hybrid yellow and some pure green as far as seed color was concerned. Similarly with three or more genes. The first hybrid generation after a cross between a pure yellow and a pure green is always uniform, while in the second we get a mixed batch showing ing every possible combination of the original genes.

In a sentence separate groups are shuffled and dealt independently of each other.

It follows from this second law of Mendel's that so long as the strains are pure and the same genes are involved, it makes no difference how they are combined in the original strain.

Instead of crossing a tall yellow and a dwarf green strain, we might have crossed a dwarf yellow and a tall green; but the result, both in the first and in all subsequent generations would have been precisely the same.

Once more, it is the individual genes which count, not the way they happen to be grouped in the parent's body. So long as all the gene-ingredients get into the first again in the right proportions, it makes no difference from what shoddy they come, any more than it makes a difference to the taste of the stew whether the pepper-pot happens to have stood next to the rice or the potatoes on the shelf. These details may seem a little tedious, but they are the very grammar of this subject, the skeleton needed to support its living flesh.

Once they are mastered, our attention can be given in various matters of general interest and far-reaching practical consequences. But they must be properly mastered before they can be used.

Abroad

By O. O. McINTYRE

PARIS, JULY 8.—The Sport of Kings is literally that sort of sport on this side of the Atlantic. I stood watching the King of Spain, fascinated, incidentally, by his flapsburg lip, while he watched the race to see which of an exciting race at Longchamps, that beautiful course on the fringe of the leafy Bois, today.

The race tracks of France offer a far more interesting colorful and cosmopolitan crowd than we see in America—save perhaps at the Louisville Derby. There are the gaily dressed, mannish from fashionable dreammaking establishments. Kings, princes, dukes, East India rajah and the smart, hawking demi-mondains only seen over here.

In the betting sheds I noticed there were very few heavy bets—most of them ranging from a few francs to about $40. The leading course is Longchamps and Au-tout along with Vincennes, St. Cloud, Maisons Laiffa and Chantilly. A different course is used daily, the horses being moved in huge motor vans.

The turf here is a grassy green course sprinkled with yellow wild flowers and it is the only place in France I know where dogs are barked. But mine should worry, for he napped during the proceedings on the plush softness of Bill Hogg's Hispano-Suiza.

The beautiful concrete grandstands are terraced with varicolored flowers and the President's box is a private castle in itself. A gentleman in a high silk hat, who occupied it, however, was a prominent wine merchant from Marseilles. The crowd was the best I ever saw.

Among those I recognized in the promenade were Felix Widenborn, the New York art dealer; Jules Bache, the banker; Betty Baker of Hollywood, Jack Hobbs, the Abolitionist of the Coconut Grove at Palm Beach; Grace Fields, former American dancer; Waterson Rothacker and his wife, and a newspaper editor who once fired me for laziness.

After the races we motored to Versailles, that stupendous pile of decaying grandeur, should worry more than anything else in the world hastened the twilight of royalty. Among other places we visited, the room where the treaty of Versailles was created. I indulged a futile peek under the table to see if the American delegates pocketed any gum there.

My biggest chuckle so far on this continental excursion was inspired today when I overheard my wife in another room scolding our deaf dog with:

"You are just like a Frenchman. You have to do everything wrong first."

The most irritating thing in France is the quick-firing congealing system of shambles pretty living in hotels. On my weekly bill was five francs for "postage service." That 50 cent of an American girl who gained some prominence as an entertainer on Broadway 10 years ago. Her comely face was spotted and her face puffed in an unwholesome blot. I had heard liquor, cocaine and Parisian night life had exalted its toll, but the change to me had something of horror. I had known her passably well and as a face to face meeting was unavoidable. I heard her hand. She took it, but there was only the blank vacuity of a clouded mind in her stare. A smiling American friend, who had known her too in affluent days observed: "They die but go on living like that over here."

I have made three visits to the bird markets on the quays near Notre Dame. On each occasion I purchased for a glance a bird and took it to the Tuilleries and released it from its tiny cage. If I were a bird, I would be in many more (are?) I can think of no life so wonderful as soaring and flitting about in the beautiful gardens of the Tuilleries.
